

Being a studied linguist, I am passionate about language and communication, but also about fact-based knowledge and the promotion of it.

Being human I am passionate about social fairness and actively shaping the society I want to live in through my work, commitment and decisions.

Most important for me is the cause I work for, second come the tasks. I am experienced in the fields of communications, community, team & organisational development, project, event and office management, particularly in a non-profit and start-up environment.

I am flexible and quick to learn. I love working result-oriented and self-organised.
